REPORTING MYTHS

More reports. Less visibility.

4 reporting myths holding manufacturers and distributors back.

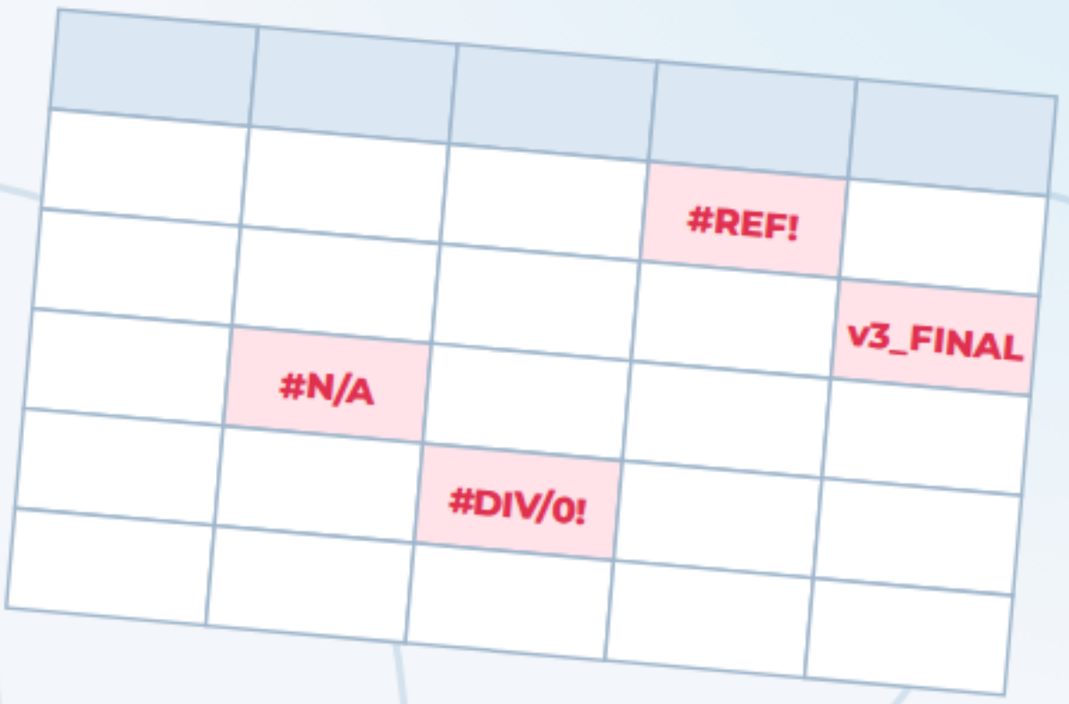

MYTH #1

More reports mean better ~~visibility.~~

REALITY

Forty reports nobody trusts isn't visibility, it's noise. Real visibility is a handful of live numbers everyone agrees on, from the shop floor to the boardroom.

MYTH #2

Spreadsheets are ~~good enough.~~

REALITY

A spreadsheet is out of date the second it's exported. Add copy-and-paste errors, five versions of the truth and one person who understands the macro, and ‘good enough’ gets expensive.

MYTH #3

Month-end is ~~soon~~ ~~enough~~ to know.

REALITY

By the time the month-end pack lands, late orders have shipped late and the margin has gone. Live data lets you act while there's still time to change the outcome.

MYTH #4

Our systems ~~already talk.~~

REALITY

If your reporting needs stitching together, your business isn't joined up. When sales, stock, production and finance share one database, the report is simply there.

THE TRUTH

Better reporting isn't more reporting.

It's fewer, trusted numbers from the one system that runs your whole operation. That's what an all-in-one ERP gives you.

01
One system, one version of the truth

02
Live numbers, not month-end surprises

03
No exports, no stitching

How many hours does your team spend building reports?

Let's talk about getting that time back with WinMan, the all-in-one ERP for manufacturers and distributors.
